Special Issue of the Journal of General Education

Active & Collaborative Learning at the University of Alabama

Contents

Title: Taking a Stand as a Student-Centered Research University: Active & Collaborative Learning meets Scholarship of Teaching at the University of Alabama
Author: Judy Bonner, Executive Vice President and Provost, University of Alabama

Title: Active & Collaborative Learning in an Introductory Electrical and Computer Engineering Course
Author: Sushma Kotru, Susan Burkett, and David Jeff Jackson, Department of Electrical & Computer Engineering

Title: A Course Wiki: Facilitating and Assessing Student-Generated Learning Content for the Humanities Classroom
Author: Rasma Lazda-Cazers, Department of Modern Languages & Classics

Title: Active Learning in Large Classes: Can Small Interventions Produce Greater Results than are Statistically Predictable
Author: Lynne Adrian, Department of American Studies

Title: Student Learning and Student Satisfaction in an Interactive Classroom
Author: Celia Lo, Department of Criminal Justice

Title: A Problem-Solving Template for Integrating Qualitative and Quantitative Physics Instruction
Author: Janice Fink and Gary Mankey, Department of Physics and Astronomy