WELCOME to the Behavioral Threat Assessment Website

Welcome to The University of Alabama’s Behavior Threat Assessment website. This site provides information on how the University identifies possible behavioral threats and outlines how to report a person of concern. The University of Alabama considers campus safety a top priority. To this end, the University has created a Threat Assessment Specialist position within the Office of Emergency Preparedness to review, assess, identify, and mitigate potential behavioral threats.

You are encouraged to further explore this website and become more aware of the various UA resources available in this area.

To learn more about UA’s Behavioral Threat Assessment protocol, click on one of the provided links.