Responsible for:
The University of Alabama seeks a forward-thinking librarian to serve as the Libraries’ central contact with the First-Year Writing Program and other academic and non-academic departments that support the first-year-experience. The candidate will provide instruction for freshmen composition classes and develop, maintain and update web pages, subject guides, tutorials and other learning objects related to the first-year-experience and freshman-level courses. This position will identify needs for outreach and opportunities for collaboration with student affairs and other non-academic units that support the first-year experience and, in collaboration with other library staff members, will plan, organize and support library involvement in key freshmen events. The candidate will also work collaboratively to explore and implement the use of emerging technologies for instruction, outreach and assessment. This position will also participate in on-call, evening and Sunday rotations.

Qualifications:
- Master's degree in Library & Information Sciences from an ALA-accredited institution
- Knowledge of trends and services in academic libraries to support first-year experience programs
- Experience providing reference/instructional services in an academic library setting, teaching experience, or knowledge of instructional methods
- Knowledge of current and emerging trends in instruction and information technologies
- Experience in developing tutorials and learning objects
- Ability to successfully initiate, track, and manage projects
- Excellent interpersonal, communication, and customer service skills and the ability to interact effectively with faculty, students and staff
